At 2 o'clock, the official starting hour of the game, the midshipmen battalior had not yet arrived at the Polo Grounds.

It was reported that the Middies had been delayed in crossing the North river by the heavy fog. The section of the side line stand reserved for the Sallors yawned bare and yellow against the surrounding mass of spectators, and the Army had the cheering and field to themselves. A few minutes later the belated Navy contingent swung onto the field headed by the Naval Academy brass band, and after several evolutions mounted the stand to its seats and the gridiron was cleared for the real action of the day.

At 2:12 the Navy team came on the field supported by its mascot, the Navy goat. A moment later the Army eleven also came onto the field. Both squads were given a terrific welcome by their adherents.

Little time was lost in preliminaries. Both Capt. Weyand and Capt. Miles were brought together by the referee to choose the field and kick-off. The Army won, and chose to defend the west goal.

Army Takes Early Lead.

The Army kicked off at 2:19 o'clock to the Navy's 30-yard line, where a midshipman was downed without gain. Martin, on the first rush, carried the ball to his 40-yard line for a first down and on the next play made nine yards through West Point's left tackle. Craig punted to the Army's 20-yard line, where Coffin was downed without gain. A line buck by Oliphant, the former Purdue star, failed to budge the Navy's line, and then the Army punted to Navy's 44-yard mark, where Craig was thrown.

Davis made two yards and then Martin plunged through right tackle for two more. Von Heimberg punted to the Army's 20-yard line, from where, by magnificent running, the ball was the Army's 20-yard line, from where, by magnificent running, the ball was carried back to the Army's 40-yard line. Coffin punted to the Navy's 10-yard line, where the ball was fumbled by the Navy. It was recovered by Weyand of the Army close to the Navy goal line. Ford for the Army failed to gain through the Navy line and Coffin also failed to make any impression on the Midshipmen's defense.

It was a wonderful defense on the part of the Navy close to their goal line.

With one more try the ball was intrusted to Oliphant, and he smashed
